EPISODE 5
THE ALLIGATOR'S VICTIM.

1. Ralph's attempt to rescue Betty from the Rajah's palace was a failure. They are recaptured and Ralph is tied to a cross in the courtyard to be tempting bait for the Rajah's tigers.....THOMAS VAN DYKE.
2. By the Rajah's orders Betty is brought to the scene of torture that she may see what becomes of those who dare to cross his will.....ELINOR FIELD
3. Determined to break Betty's spirit the cruel and crafty Rajah stops at nothing to gain his end.....La Fayette McKee
4. "Please, please stop this! How can you be so cruel!"
5. The Rajah's wife makes an attempt to save Ralph, knowing that when he is killed she will be cast aside for Betty.
6. "Hurry--you must make your escape before they kill the tigers and return to make you prisoners again!"
7. "Get out the horses--we shall soon overtake them."
8. Not knowing in which direction the fugitives have gone, the Rajah and his men are compelled to circle around in search after them.
9. Ralph, seeing Betty is about exhausted, decides to rest for a while.
10. Ralph sends the great ape out to find if the Rajah has started a search for them.
11. The great ape returns with a warning that the Rajah and his men are coming.
12. "I found this on the ground--they must have passed this way."
13. "They are not far away. Search the surrounding jungle for any possible hiding place."

END OF REEL 1
REEL 2

14. "Take him to the swamp and tie him up--then he will bother us no more."
15. The Rajah takes Betty to a well-guarded room in the Palace.
16. "Why do you haunt me? You know I will never marry you--what have you done with Ralph?"
17. "You shall stay here until I am ready to have you join my harem. As to your friend--he is being taken to a nearby swamp noted for its alligators."
18. "Please do not harm him. Let him go and I will be your slave."
19. "No you've changed your mind! But it is too late now to save your friend."

1. Ralph is dragged to the edge of a swamp infested with monster alligators.

21. "I will go now to see if my men have returned."

22. "I have no fear of your escaping--you are well guarded."

23. "If I were you I could not attempt to escape by the window again."

24. Ralph watches in terror as the alligator circles around him, not knowing at what moment those deadly jaws will close upon him.

EPISODE 8

THE ALLIGATOR'S VICTIM

Betty is brought in to witness the death of Ralph. She looks with horror at the terrible thing done by the Rajah and sees the tiger sniffing at the foot of the post. Ralph is tied to the cross-arm of the post. The Rajah smiles as though enjoying the scene before him, but Betty turns her head away as the hungry tigers begin jumping up and snarling, trying to reach Ralph. Even the Rajah's wife looks on in horror and once or twice raises the club she carries in her hand as though to protest against the deed being perpetrated against this man. She can stand it no longer and raising the club she brings it down with great force on the guard who handles the gate. Slowly the others see the great gate beginning to open and the Rajah shouts out the danger. The guard holding Betty drops her and all run out of scene leaving Betty lying on ground. The tigers come leaping out of the gates and over the prostrate body of Betty, while Ralph, strapped to the crossarm looks down in horror. The Rajah's wife again works the levers of the gate and it closes. Then she rushes up to Betty and picking her up soon tells her all danger is past from the wild beasts and they both proceed to Ralph and release him from his perilous position. The Rajah and his men are kept busy trying to kill the released tigers before they can do damage, and the Rajah's wife tells Betty and Ralph that now is the time for them to make their escape while the Rajah and his men are busy with the animals and the wife points out the way. When the men have dispatched the tigers they return to the arena to find the ropes cut and Betty and Ralph gone. The Rajah sends his men for the horses and they start in pursuit. They get very close to the spot where Ralph and Betty and the ape are in hiding, find Betty's handkerchief and finally succeed in locating them and capturing them. They are taken back to the Rajah's palace. Betty is placed in a room in the palace and is told by the Rajah of the fate to which Ralph has been sent and she pleads for her own and Ralph's life, but the Rajah tells her it is too late now as by that time Ralph is no more. While Ralph is taken out to a swamp containing alligators and tied to the stump of a tree. One of the alligators comes slowly and stealthily up to Ralph and makes ready to tear at him and devour him, then it starts circling around Ralph, comes toward him with mouth opened.

Betty in her agony starts over to window around screen and is horrified to find chained there a large leopard. She starts back in horror and the Rajah laughs and tells her she had better not try to escape by the window. Then he exits from the room.
